Metallic Infill Panel Replacement

The Hundred of Hoo Academy is going through a massive regeneration plan. As a part of this, they asked us to carry out the metallic infill panel replacement to the main building. We had previously installed new uPVC windows and blue metallic infill panels to an area of the school. This gave the building a new lease of life. The Academy then decided that the current white panels be replaced with new blue panels at the front of the building. This, along with other refurbishment works, transformed the building and restored it to it's former glory. The colour of the panels were chosen by the school which represented the school's image. Each white uPVC panel was upgraded to a new metallic panel. This increased durability as well as security. Additionally the performance of each panel increases insulation u values to 1.1. This has significantly improved the thermal efficiency.
