New External Teaching Area

Milton Court Primary Academy contacted us requesting ideas for a new external teaching area that they were looking to create. The solution was a large timber log cabin which could be used as a small breakout classroom or, secondly, as a facility that could accommodate a class of thirty pupils.

The Works

A location was identified by the school which was a grass area that wasn't being used to its full potential. The ground was leveled and a concrete base was laid in preparation for the new teaching area. The new 30m² timber log cabin was erected and included internal benches, a kitchen unit and a sink with water supply. Additionally, an electric supply was run into the new log cabin to power heating and LED lighting with the focal point being a high level spiral LED chandelier. Wooden framed double glazed windows as well as a door were installed to add improved security.

Landscaping

A pathway leading from the main school building to the new external teaching area was laid. Finally, the- final touch was to landscape the area to aid the character of the wooden cabin and create an exciting place for young students to learn.
